

McDonald's workers are on strike today and here's why...

McDONALD'S workers at stores in Crayford (south east London) and Cambridge are making history today. They are the first ever McDonald's workers in Britain to go ON STRIKE.

They are campaigning for a £10 an hour minimum wage now, for guaranteed hours contracts and for union rights. The strike is also to stop bullying managers.

Many people think that McDonald's workers can't go on strike, can't join a union, and can't organise together for better pay, better conditions and more respect at work.

But McDonald's workers can.

Since the workers voted to strike, they've been all over the news, with huge support pouring in from all over the country and the world.

McDonald's responded, saying they'll offer guaranteed hours to every worker by the end of 2017.

This would never have happened without McDonald's workers organising into the Bakers' Food & Allied Workers' Union (BFAWU), and voting for the strike. By joining the union and the campaign, McDonald's workers can win £10 an hour, more secure hours and can win better more dignified working conditions.
